The maritime industry must meet unique challenges and the growing needs of a global economy.

While the industry has embraced technology, there is a need to accelerate the process.

There is unrelenting pressure from regulators, investors, and customers alike to adopt cleaner and safer practices for a better future.

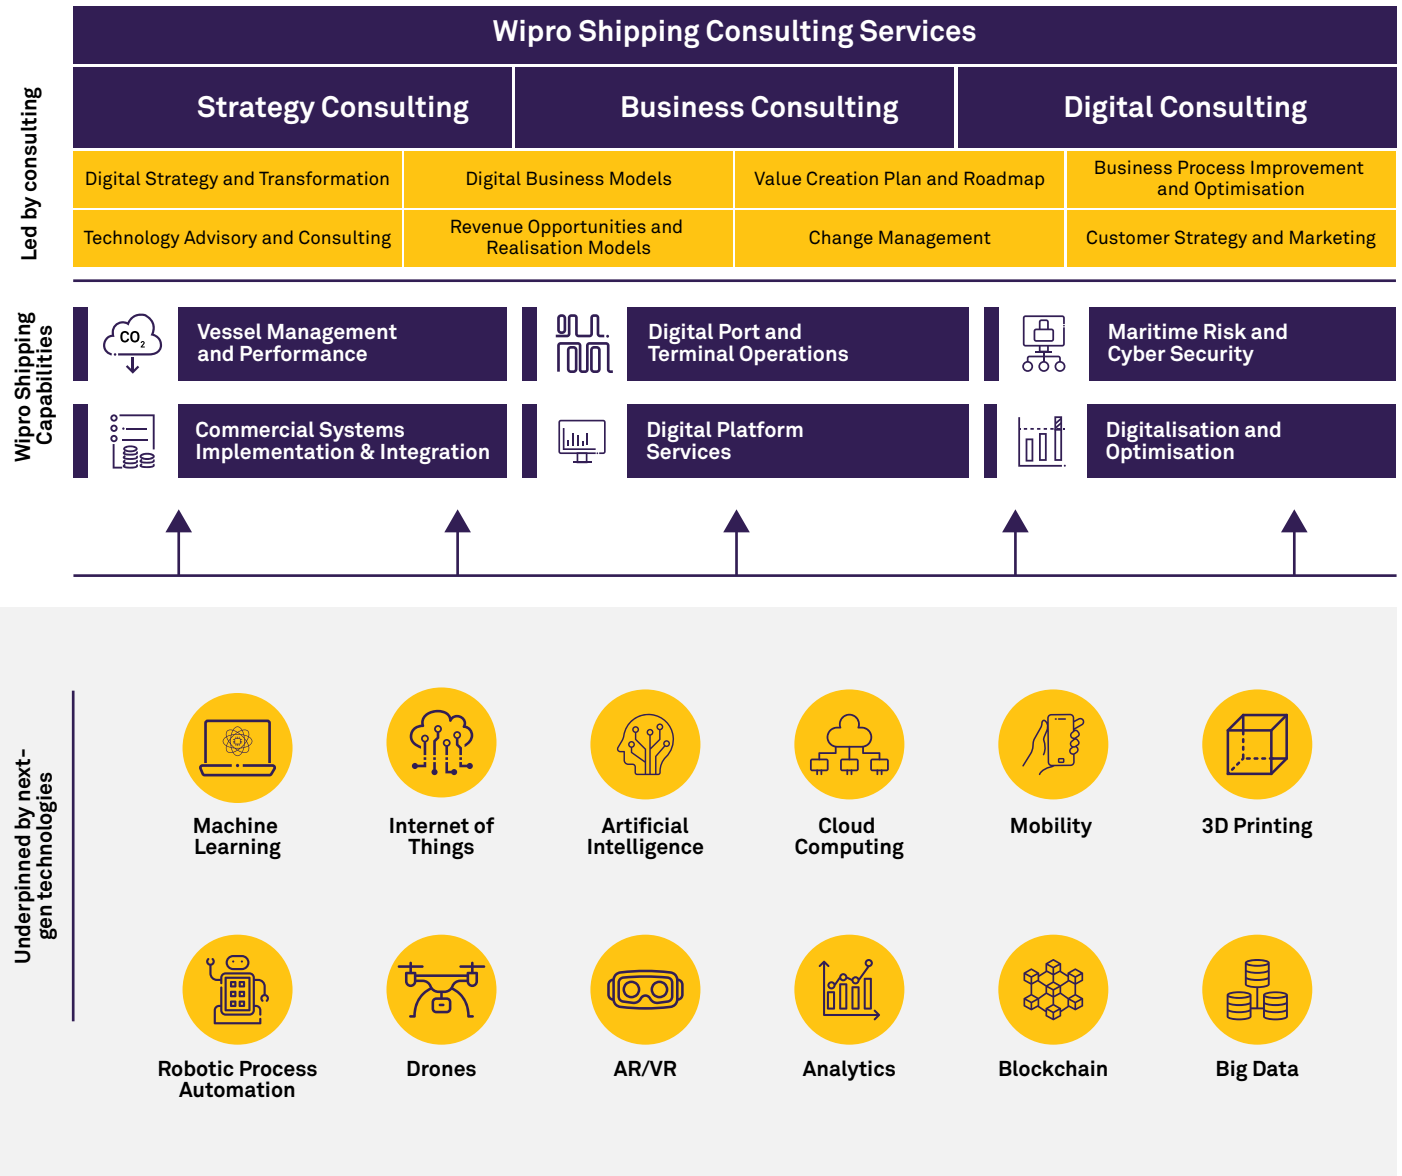

Moving around 90% of the world's trade volumes, shipping is the backbone of the global economy. As the industry continues to modernize, new challenges emerge: calls on the industry to decarbonize, ever-increasing cyber-attacks, mounting regulatory pressures and manual legacy processes, while catering to the growing needs of a flourishing global economy at the same time. There is a pressing need to accelerate how the industry meets the demands of a better tomorrow.
