Repealing laws not good for future reforms: SC panel

Rahul Gandhi says laws will destroy agri sector

SANJEEB MUKHERJEE & AGENCIES
New Delhi, 19 January

The members of a panel set up by the Supreme Court to resolve the crisis of farmer protests said on Tuesday they would keep aside their ideology and views while consulting stakeholders, even as they indicated a complete repeal won't augur well for much-needed agriculture reforms.

The panel met for the first time on Tuesday. The biggest challenge, the members said, is to convince the agitating farmers to come and speak with them. "We will try our best. We also want to request those farmers who don't want to come before us that we are neither from any party nor from the government's side. We are from the Supreme Court's side," said Anil Ghanwat, a member of the panel.

Agriculture economist Ashok Gulati and former director of the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI), Pramod Kumar Joshi, are the remaining members of the panel.

A fourth member, Bhupinder Singh Mann, recused himself few days back after questions were raised by the protesting farmer unions about the views expressed by all members in the past in support of the contentious laws, against which thousands are protesting on Delhi borders for almost two months now.

After their meeting, Ghanwat said the first round of consultations with farmers and other stakeholders had been scheduled for Thursday. Nine rounds of talks have taken place between the government and agitating unions without any concrete resolution so far.

"AS FARMERS ARE UNORGANISED AND VOICELESS, THE FOUR PS — PARLIAMENT, POLITICAL LEADERS, POLICYMAKERS, AND PRESS — MUST PROACTIVELY ADOPT A POSITIVE BIAS TOWARDS AGRICULTURE"

M VENKAIAH NAIDU
VICE PRESIDENT

"I SUPPORT THE PROTESTING FARMERS 100 PER CENT AND EVERY SINGLE PERSON IN THE COUNTRY SHOULD SUPPORT THEM AS THEY ARE FIGHTING FOR US"

RAHUL GANDHI
CONGRESS LEADER

Meanwhile, Congress leader Rahul Gandhi said the new laws were designed to "destroy" the country's agriculture sector and the only solution to the farmers' issue is to repeal the legislation.

At a press conference, Gandhi released a booklet highlighting the "plight" of farmers in the wake of the three farm laws. He alleged the laws would put the entire agriculture sector in the hands of "three to four crony capitalists". "I support the protesting farmers 100 per cent and every single person in the country should support them as they are fighting for us."

The BJP hit back at Gandhi over his attack on the farm laws accusing the Congress of working to scuttle the ongoing talks between the Centre and farmer unions.

In a separate development, Vice President M Venkaiah Naidu said any policy designed for the agriculture sector should have farmers' welfare as its guiding principle. He stressed on making Indian agriculture profitable by reducing input costs and providing uninterrupted power as well as credit at low interest rates to the farming community. "As farmers are unorganised and voiceless, the four Ps — Parliament, political leaders, policymakers and press — must proactively adopt a positive bias towards agriculture. In fact, a radical shift in making agriculture profitable is the need of the hour," Naidu said.

Thousands of farmers, mostly from Haryana and Punjab, have been protesting at several border points of Delhi since November 28, demanding a repeal of the three laws and a legal guarantee to the minimum support price system for their crops.

Enacted in September last year, the three laws have been projected by the Centre as major reforms in the agriculture sector that will remove middlemen and allow farmers to sell their produce anywhere in the country. However, the protesting farmers have expressed their apprehension that the new laws would pave the way for eliminating the safety cushion of the MSP and do away with the mandi system, leaving them at the mercy of big corporates.

E-trading platforms outside mandis likely soon

SANJEEB MUKHERJEE
New Delhi, 19 January

In one of the first moves after passing of the three agriculture Acts, National Bulk Handling Corporation (NBHC), a leading agri-warehousing services company, is planning to start an electronic market platform outside the mandis.

This will complement its growing network of NABL-accredited quality testing and assaying labs along with existing storage infrastructure.

Likely to be called Krishi Setu, the platform is being planned on the lines of Amazon for agriculture goods. It will provide a transparent option for both buyers and sellers to trade outside the ambit of conventional mandis.

The company plans to start groundwork for a formal launch of the platform soon by getting in touch with farmer-producer organisations (FPOs) and other groups. It hopes to get the project up and running by June-end.

"The plan to start such a platform was already in the works for some time but the trigger was definitely the three Acts," Ramesh Doraiswami, managing director (MD) and chief executive officer (CEO) of NBHC told Business Standard.

The new farm Act, particularly the one on trade, allows the setting up of electronic trading platforms outside the mandis dubbed 'trade areas'. No cess or levy can be imposed by any state government on the electronic platform or the trader who operates in it. The Act says the e-platform has to operate and register, according to norms laid down by the Centre and state governments. NBHC is wholly-owned by private equity major True North. Currently, it operates over 1,250 warehouses across the country having a total capacity of over 2.10 million metric tonnes. That apart, the company also has over 40 quality testing labs across India, of which five are accredited by bodies such as NABL and APEDA. The process to get accreditation for the remaining labs is on.

Doraiswami said NBHC is also looking to expand its network of accredited laboratories, which can test a variety of farm produce. It can match the needs of food processors and exporters.

The e-marketplace, along with the accredited labs and existing network of storages and warehouses, will enable the company to offer a full range of services to customers. "Suppose Britannia wants quality wheat for its products, it can use our platform to purchase it and the firm would expect NBHC to provide the underlying collection, storage and fumigation services. This would ensure that the wheat it gets in the processing plant is of the right quality," Doraiswami added.

Doraiswami said, according to estimates, the food products' quality testing market in India is estimated to be around ₹700-800 crore, and is growing around 10-15 per cent annually.

Govt asks WhatsApp...

It added that "the proposed changes raise grave concerns regarding the implications for the choice and autonomy of Indian citizens. Therefore, you are called upon to withdraw the proposed changes. Further, you are urged to reconsider your approach to respect the informational privacy, freedom of choice and data security of Indian citizens".

The email further raised concern about the differential treatment being provided to Indian users against their European counterparts, where WhatsApp's privacy policy "specifically prohibits the use of any information shared with a Facebook company for companies' own purposes, while this clause is not present in the privacy policy offered to Indian users".

In addition to general questions around the specific services provided by WhatsApp in India, its data-sharing practices, and permissions, the ministry has asked whether WhatsApp conducts profiling its Indian users, whether permissions sought in other geographical locations are different from those in India, which server hosts Indian WhatsApp users' data, and so on.

On Tuesday, Ravi Shankar Prasad, minister of electronics and IT, said at an event that digital platforms were free to do business in India as long as they did not look at Indians' personal communication.

"Be it WhatsApp, be it Facebook, be it any digital platform, you are free to do the business in India, but do it in a manner without infringing upon the rights of Indians who operate them," Prasad said at the inaugural session of the India Digital Summit (IDS), organised by the Internet and Mobile Association of India.

Speaking to Anant Goenka, executive director, Indian Express, in a video conference, Prasad said the "sanctity of personal communication needs to be maintained". When asked if he was still on WhatsApp, Prasad said he wasn't, and reiterated that conversations like a doctor talking to patients or a lawyer talking to clients were privileged communication, and shouldn't be available for anyone else to see.

NPCI-type agency...

According to highly placed sources, the separate agency for digital lenders will adopt a structure similar to that of the National Payments Corporation of India (NPCI), an initiative of the RBI and the Indian Banks' Association (IBA) under the provisions of the Payment and Settlement Systems Act, 2007.

Incorporated as a not-for-profit company in 2008, 10 banks, including State Bank of India, Punjab National Bank, Canara Bank, HDFC Bank, ICICI Bank, Citibank, and HSBC, were core promoters of NPCI. At present, NPCI has 56 member banks.

"A similar participative model involving banks and large fintechs is being considered," said a person aware of the development.

"The reason why the RBI is in favour of creating an independent agency is that it can be set up with minimal changes to the existing Banking Regulation Act and therefore the process will be a lot faster," said a person aware of the development.

This agency would report to the RBI on a periodic basis. "The idea is to have a framework on how to approve and regulate fintechs," said Satyram Kumar, co-founder, Fintech Association for Consumer Empowerment (FACE).

The role of this agency would be to ensure that fintechs comply with the regulations, both at the time of seeking registration and during the course of its operations.

Sources said five critical aspects had been identified so far, which would be top priority for the new agency.

"The agency will first look into the colour of money or the source of funding for fintechs. This will be the foremost priority," said another person aware of the development. Besides, the holding structure of the fintech will also be scrutinised to ascertain how capital will be funnelled to the entity. Directors and key managerial persons would have to satisfy certain 'fit and proper' conditions to be appointed to the company, conditions similar to that of a bank.

A transparent grievance mechanism like the RBI's banking ombudsman is also planned to be set up for customers to directly approach the agency in case of malpractices. Data protection, data sensitivity and security will also be an important consideration for the proposed agency.

Fintechs or loan apps registered as NBFCs with NPCI will be onboarded the new agency, provided they satisfy the required regulations.

For new outfits, the registration process by way of making an application will be mandatory.

"The objective is to eliminate illegitimate players from the system and ensure that the customer data and privacy is given the respect it deserves," said Kumar.
